Mid-Winter Business Meeting of the Alumnae Association

The Midwinter Business Meeting of the Alumnae Association was held on Saturday, March 21, 1953, at 2:00 o'clock, in the Virginia Dare Room. Luncheon was served at 1:00 o'clock, followed by the business session.

Virginia Sloan Swain, President, welcomed the guests and the returning alumnae, calling special attention to the presence of Mrs. E. K. Graham, wife of the Chancellor, and Dr. W. C. Jackson, Chancellor Emeritus of Woman's College.

The President then recognized Miss Marjorie Hood, Chairman of the Nominating Committee, personnel of which includes the following alumnae: Judy Barrett '42; Penny Smith Coffin '32; Lela Nell Masters '38; Jane Linville Joyner '46; Margaret Duckworth Palmer '30; Julia Ross Lambert Thayer '51; Mary Lee Alford Hunter '36; Lane Siler '43; Laura Linn Wiley Lewis '18.

Miss Hood presented the following slate of officers, whose terms would begin June 1953 and end June 1955:

President:

Annie Lee Singletary '31
Elise Rouse Wilson '43

Second V. President:

Emily Harris Preyer '39
Martha Biggs Thompson '28

Recording Secretary:

Dorothy Ward '41
Carolyn Jordan Clark '43

For Members of the Alumnae Board of Trustees: (4 to be elected)

Emma Lewis Speight Morris '00
Ellen Griffin '40
Ernestine Halyburton McDonald '33

Mary Virginia Rigsby '48
Elizabeth Fulton VanNoppen '23
Betty Dixon Paschal '46
Nancy Kirby West '44
Grace Hayes Williams '29

Miss Hood moved that this report be accepted and Betty Bullard seconded the motion. Mrs. Swain then called for nominations from the floor. Since there were none, the report of the Nominating Committee was unanimously accepted. Ballots will be mailed to active alumnae May 1, to be returned and tallied by May 15.

Louise Dannenbaum Falk, Chairman of the Alumnae Fund Committee, gave a brief report on the status of the Fund.

Mrs. Swain then recognized Miss Mereb Mossman, Dean of Instruction, at the College, who brought greetings in the absence of Chancellor Graham. Dean Mossman expressed thanks to the alumnae again for the gift from the Alumnae Fund and explained that the gift made possible the beginning of an evaluation of teaching at the College.

Miss Mossman introduced Dr. Thomas H. Procter, retired professor of philosophy at Wellesley, now visiting lecturer at Woman's College, who gave the address which is printed in full on pages 7, 8 and 10.

Three Alumnae Elected to University Board of Trustees

Three Alumnae of Woman's College were elected to membership on the University Board of Trustees by vote of the 1953 General Assembly, replacing three Alumnae whose terms expired April 1, 1953.

Newly elected Alumnae were: Mrs. J. B. Kittrell (Elizabeth Hinton '19), of Greenville; Mrs. Charles W. Tillett (Gladys Avery '15), Charlotte; and Mrs. Grace Taylor Rodenbough M.S. '52, Walnut Cove.

The Alumnae retiring from the Board are: Mrs. Julius W. Cone (Laura Weill '10), Greensboro; Miss Gertrude Carraway '15, New Bern; and Mrs. L. L. Miller (Frances Newson '42), Raleigh.

The Alumnae of Woman's College welcome the new members of the Board and wish them success in the tremendous responsibility to the State which membership on the Board carries in directing the policies of the Consolidated University.

Mrs. Kittrell has been active in alumnae work in Pitt County and is a civic leader in her community. Mrs. Tillett has long been identified with the Democratic Party of North Carolina, having been a National Committee Woman for a number of years. Mrs. Rodenbough represents Stokes County in the 1953 Legislature. She received her master's degree from the Woman's College in 1952.

The Alumnae are indeed grateful to the retiring Alumnae members for their unceasing efforts in behalf of the Consolidated University and of the Woman's College in particular.

During their terms of office on the Board, Mrs. Miller and Miss Carraway served the Consolidated University faithfully and through work on various committees, they made a real contribution to the activities of the Board.

As a member of the Executive Committee for many years, as chairman of the Trustees Building Committee for Woman's College, member of the finance committee and the admissions committee, Mrs. Cone has effectively contributed to the work of the Board. Her uncompromising standards of excellence, her interest in higher education and the quality of her intellect and judgment have made her contribution outstanding.

Other Alumnae who are members of the University Board of Trustees are: Mrs. Albert Lathrop (Virginia Terrell '23); Mrs. B. C. Parker (Rosa Blakeney '16); Mrs. R. S. Ferguson (Sue Ramsey Johnston '18); Mrs. Ed Anderson (Stella Williams '23); Mrs. William Copeland (Nancy Hall Sawyer '38); Mrs. Charles Tomlinson (May Lovelace '07). Mrs. Charles Stanford of Chapel Hill, is also one of the ten women members.

Liberal Education . . .

By DR. THOMAS PROCTER, Visiting Professor of Philosophy

ADDRESS MADE AT ALUMNAE MID-WINTER BUSINESS MEETING
SATURDAY, MARCH 21, 1953

In the brief time that I have been in Woman's College I have learned both to appreciate and respect it as an educational institution. Consequently I am glad to have this opportunity to meet so many of its alumnae and proud that I have been invited to speak at this meeting.

I am frequently asked to talk to Wellesley alumnae. But recently, the only topic that they let me speak about is the Detective Story. However since you are graduates not of Wellesley but of Woman's College, I can venture to speak on a more serious topic. When an educator has the chance to speak to educated women, vitally interested in this educational institution, what topic could be more appropriate than Education? I want to raise the question, "What is a good education?" What I have to say on this subject is by no means original. It was all said 2,000 years ago by Plato in the Dialogue called The Protagoras—in my opinion the basic document for all educational discussion. It should be required reading for all College Presidents, Deans, Professors, Trustees, and Alumnae.

The Protagoras deals precisely with the questions: What is good education? And what is the good of it? We too easily take for granted that education as such is good—regardless of the kind of education. This uncritical association of education and goodness is obviously false. There are many kinds of education with widely differing purposes. There are schools such as the Nazis had and the Communists still have, no doubt highly efficient in the means employed but for a bad end. There might conceivably be schools for the education of criminals, with diligent students gaining good grades in Pocket Picking 101, Elementary Shoplifting 102, Advanced Shoplifting 203, The Science of Burglary 304, culminating in a Seminar for Seniors in Police Evasion 350. Such courses might be well taught by competent professors all with advanced degrees from Alcatraz or Leavenworth; in a college splendidly equipped with laboratories and the latest technique in auditory-visual learning; with bright students carefully selected by criminal aptitude tests. It would be a college. It might however be doubted that it is a good college. It would give an education. It might however be doubted that it was a good education.

The point I am making is that a college cannot be evaluated in terms of buildings, faculties, apparatus, the number of Ph.D.'s on the faculty or by teaching-efficiency or by anything else if we disregard aims, ends, objectives—in a word, ideals. For these are all means to an end, and an end is an Ideal. We cannot avoid the question, What is it for? What is the good of it?

When we consider "practical" or "technical" education this question is easily answered. Let us take, for instance, the education given in a school of cookery, such as Fluffy Cake Academy, an institution heavily endowed by the Pillsbury Foundation. The students of Fluffycake have no doubt about why they are there. They are taught to make wonderful cakes, light, fluffy, rich, flavorsome, iced and decorated. How proudly they present their graduating thesis. How wise they were to choose this school. They have been educated. They have learned something—and something useful, tangible, edible. They have been greatly improved. Formerly they were merely cooks. Now they are good cooks.

I can go further. Girls get married and have husbands. Husbands are hungry beasts requiring to be fed often and fed well. I would like to be the publicity agent for Fluffycake Academy. I know exactly the sort of advertising copy I would put out for the papers. In the form of the comic cartoon, of course. In one frame there would be a picture of a girl, surrounded by books, such as the Bible, Shakespeare, treatises of mathematics, etc. She would be frumpy; frowsy; wearing bluejeans and spectacles; with tousled hair; lonely; dejected; neglected; the third finger of her left hand conspicuously bare. She would be saying, "Oh, why didn't mother send me to Fluffycake." In the other frame, bright and beaming, neat and tidy, in a clean apron, the center of attraction, surrounded by handsome young men, a ten carat diamond sparkling on her finger, would be the other girl. The handsomest of the handsome young men would be gazing at her adoringly and saying "Isn't she a good cook," and she would be saying "How glad I am that I came to Fluffycake."

What is wrong with this picture. In one sense nothing is wrong. Cakes are good. It is better to be a good cook than nothing at all, or a bad cook. Such useful education is good education. She has gained useful knowledge and useful skill; useful in terms of this end.

So many of you want your sons and daughters to have a practical education. But what does practical mean? Simply "useful," and the "useful" is a means to an end. But there are many ends of differing degrees of worth and what is useful for one end is useless and impractical for another. There is no "practical in general," and the word practical means nothing unless you define the end. Practical for what? The so-called practical education is specialized training in specialized skills and specialized knowledge, for special goods. Its aim is to produce good cooks, good secretaries, engineers, flute players, technical scientists.

I do not despise this kind of education. It is, within its own limits, good education, and the aim is a worthy aim. It is part at least, of the concept of good education. But the question still remains. Is it the adequate ideal? Is good education no more than this?

There is one very simple and, I think, very sound reason for replying in the negative to this question. Education is the education of a human being. The two terms "good cook and good human being" are not synonymous. A good cook might not be a good woman and conversely a good woman might not be a good cook. No special skill and no combination of special skills adds up to what we mean by a good human being. She might be a good cook and good housekeeper and good typist and good pianist and still fall lamentably short of humanity.

There is a real sense in which man is ever more than the sum of his parts. No description of human nature is complete, if it simply enumerates the practical and special. It must include that unity and identity upon which human worth depends and upon which the worth of the separate parts depends. For without their relation to this unity, the special parts are worthless.

This is the insight of Emerson's famous American Scholar address, given over one hundred years ago but still valid. He wrote eloquently "Man is not a fanner or a professor or an engineer, but he is all. Man is not priest or scholar or statesman or producer or soldier. In other words, man may perform any of these special functions but he is more than any of them or all of them. Without this sense of essential unity," Emerson continues, "man is metamorphosed into a thing, into many things: The planter, who is man sent out into the fields to gather food, when he sees his bushel and his cart and nothing beyond, sinks into the farmer instead of man on the farm. The tradesman scarcely ever gives an ideal worth to his work but is ridden by the routine of his craft, his soul subject to dollars. The priest becomes a form, the attorney a statute book, the mechanic a machine, the sailor a rope of the ship."

But this insight is much older than Emerson. Four hundred years before Christ, in Ancient Greece, a new type of teacher appeared: teachers who professed to teach something more than skill in horseback riding, fighting in heavy armor or flute-playing. They were called, somewhat scornfully, Sophists, from the Greek word sophia (wisdom) and the name sophist might be translated "wise guys." Some of them were bad and brought the whole movement into disrepute. But the world owes much to them, since they were really the founders of cultural education. The best of them, including Protagoras, had a really genuine insight. Plato represents Socrates as asking Protagoras the question that I am asking you this morning. "What is the good of the kind of education that you give?" And Protagoras replies in effect, "I do not teach special arts for special ends—my aim is to make good men. On the first day that the student comes to me, he will return home a better man," and, in response to further questioning, he adds, "my aim is to make better citizens."

Notice the word "good" and "better" and that these terms are applied not to cooks or engineers but to men and citizens.

This is the "cultural aim" as distinct from the "technical aim." It is distinguished from the technical aim by the fact that its aim is essentially, the moral aim; good men and good citizens.

Education is genuinely cultural just in so far as its aim is moral.

In practice the fulfillment of this aim was sought through the teaching of music and gymnastics. But "music" included literature and poetry, more especially the study of the great poets such as Homer and Hesiod.

The poets such as Homer were, for the Greeks, almost a sacred literature, roughly equivalent to our Old Testament. The poems set forth the early legendary history of the Greeks, and still more, portrayed the tribal heroes and the gods. They expressed a tradition and a culture; held up through the heroes and the gods patterns of great living, revealing the nature of nobility; arousing and defining ambition to be like them.

In addition to the teaching of the poets, Protagoras stressed the teaching of the manners, customs and laws of the city that represented the general moral consciousness of the city and, in addition to these, he suggests, the need for disciplinary measures—even for spanking. "The bent stick must be straightened of blows."

Such subjects broadly correspond to the subjects, methods and aims of cultural education in our modern education, including history taught as national tradition to arouse pride in country and patriotism; including great literature, transmitting the experience of mankind, setting forth types of men, heroes and villains, the good to be imitated, the bad to be abhorred; including the arts of music and the dance, to stimulate imagination, to impart graces, to arouse and deepen refined emotions and through beauty to civilize the harsh, crude human instincts. I can express this aim in one phrase. Its contrast to technical education; training in special skills for special good; its more general aim is the formation of character, training in good habits, in obedience to recognized moral customs."

In the Victorian Age, this ideal informed the female academics and the finishing schools, to which young girls were sent to be trained to be ladies. In our day, Emily Post is one of its prophets.

You will recognize this aim in such slogans as "social adjustment," "education for character," "education for citizenship," or even "moral and religious education." It is essentially indoctrination.

Again, I do not despise this. It is part of the notion of good education. But again the question may be asked "Is it the final aim? Is it an adequate notion?"

What is valid in this ideal, is that good education must ever be more than technical. It must be moral education and its aim, the moral aim. This is the principle shared by both Protagoras and Socrates. But a new question arises at this point. What is the moral? What is a moral man and a good citizen and a good society?

The most usual concept of the moral is that conveyed by the derivation of the term itself. It is derived from the Latin word which means "custom." The Greeks equivalent "ethical" is from ethos—with the same meaning. It is a definition of morality which condemns as an immoral person the Jesus who notoriously, for the sake of something higher than custom, for truth beyond accepted belief, disregarded the mores of his time and culture and departed radically from orthodox religious beliefs.

"For the sake of something higher than custom." That there is something higher is the insight of the liberal ideal. It is the insight of Socrates. The simple insight that makes it sheerly impossible that the cultural aim can be final.

What is this insight? Simply, the general common recognition that at least some customs are bad customs; some laws, unjust laws; some beliefs, untrue. To recognize this is to recognize that there are higher principles of morality, justice and truth, over and above the manners of our society, our culture, the beliefs of our time; principles by which all these are to be judged. Truth is above belief since not all beliefs are true; justice is not identified with the actual law, since not all laws are just; the moral and the good are above the conventional and the customary, since some customs are immoral.

The great forward movements of mankind have come from great individuals who refused to take accepted beliefs and practices as final. The great prophets of the Old Testament denounced the accepted practices.

Dr. Mueller Receives Ford Foundation Award

Dr. William R. Mueller, assistant professor of English at Woman's College, has been awarded a Ford Foundation faculty fellowship for 1953-54, chosen by the Fund for the Advancement of Education as one of 20 American scholars to receive the award.

The Woman's College teacher has chosen to use his fellowship for study at the Yale Graduate School's Department of Religion. He will study in three main fields, Old Testament Literature, Christian and social ethics, and systematic theology. He also hopes to minister to a small Congregational Christian church during the year.

Dr. Mueller will return to teach at Woman's College in the fall of 1954. During the coming summer and next summer he will study at Union Theological Seminary, continuing work he has done there during the past two summers.

Dr. Mueller, 36-year-old native of Baltimore, has been a consistent contributor to literary journals, and during the past year has published a monograph, "The Anatomy of Robert Bruton's England," published by the University of California Press, and was co-editor of a book of essays in honor of Edmund Spenser, 16th Century poet, and editor of another book, "Edmund Spenser Criticism," published by the Syracuse University Press and the Johns Hopkins Press, respectively.

The two Spenser books were the only ones published this year during the 400th anniversary of the poet's birth. Dr. Mueller has been particularly interested in certain theological aspects presented in sixteenth century literature.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mueller, Roland Park Apartments, Baltimore, Dr. Mueller is a 1939 magna cum laude graduate of Princeton. Studying English literature at Harvard, he received the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in 1939 and 1942. He was in the Naval Reserve during 1942-1946, and taught at Williams College from 1946 to 1948, and at Santa Barbara College of the University of California until he came to Woman's College in 1951.

Dr. and Mrs. Mueller have two young children, a daughter and a son.

FOUR SOCIETIES ABOLISHED BY STUDENT VOTE

The four societies of Woman's College—Adelphian, Cornelian, Dikcan and Aletheian—were abolished by vote of the student body on Tuesday, March 3, 1953, at a mass meeting in Aycock Auditorium.

For many years the question has been raised as to the real value of the Societies as they functioned today, and votes have been taken periodically as to whether or not to keep them.

In view of the fact that most of the activities which had been in the province of the Societies had long since been taken over by other organizations and departments, the students felt the societies performed no real function. As a tribute to the fine work done by the societies in the earlier years of our College, a history of the growth and development of the societies will be published in the Alumnae News at a later date. The Editor will be happy to have Alumnae send in interesting incidents depicting the influential role the societies played in College life so that the story of the societies can be accurate as well as informative.

MISS HELEN PICKARD DIES FOLLOWING SHORT ILLNESS

Miss Helen Lee Pickard, assistant purchasing agent at Woman's College for thirty years, died Monday, February 16, 1953, following an illness of five days.

HELEN LEE PICKARD

In memory of Miss Pickard her friends have established the Helen Pickard Memorial Loan Fund at the college which on April 17 amounted to $1200.

Miss Pickard attended Greensboro College and after working only a short time at Armour Fertilizer Company in Greensboro, joined the staff at Woman's College in October 1923. She was secretary to the late Mr. W. H. Livers, business manager; Mr. C. E. Teague, business manager and later assistant comptroller; and to Mr. John C. Lockhart, who is at present the assistant comptroller at Woman's College.

In her quiet, unassuming way, Miss Pickard served the college faithfully and well. Her devotion to duty and her extreme loyalty were forcefully demonstrated in the numberless overtime hours and days she spent at her desk. Her graciousness and her cooperative spirit were always in evidence and no request was ever too small or too great to receive her full attention. Her patience, her tolerance, her friendliness, her complete unselfishness, and her thoughtfulness of others, were a constant source of inspiration to all who knew her.

Such a life of selfless devotion is a benediction to her colleagues, her family, and her many friends.

Liberal Education

Address by Dr. Thomas Procter

Jesus violated the conventions of his society, even though they were held to be sacred. In ancient Athens, Socrates was the relentless critic of many of the religious beliefs in the sacred pages of Homer. Jesus was crucified. Socrates was poisoned. It is well for mankind always to remember that.

Both Protagoras and Socrates were moral teachers but with widely differing notions of what teaching is. This difference may be expressed in the difference between the two words "indoctrination" and "education." The teacher as indoctrinator, has a doctrine and seeks to impress it indelibly on the minds of the student. Socrates was in this sense of the word not a teacher but an educator in the derivative sense of the word—not putting something into the mind, but educating, leading out of the mind. "I have nothing to teach," he says of himself. "My business is to bring other people's thoughts to birth and to test them." His persistent questioning revealed to his students their confusion of thought; made them aware of their ignorance. But when once they were purged from the conceit of wisdom, thinking that they were wise when they were not wise, they could advance towards greater clarity, more penetrative insights, more vivid realization of the values upon which civilization rests. They were changed from those who obey because of fear to those who accept because of rational insight; changed from mere conformists to wise citizens.

This is what I mean by the liberal education. I distinguish it from "general education" which does indeed contrast with special education, but often only in terms of some course or courses added to the curriculum. The matter goes much deeper than courses or credits. I can conceive of general education courses that might be illiberal, whereas a special course given by a teacher such as A. N. Whitehead even on such a barren subject as cockroaches, would be a liberal education.

Liberal education is often expressed in the slogan—"Teaching students to think for themselves." This does convey the contrast with dogmatic teaching and the mere acceptance of the traditional. It recognizes that we are individuals and that dogmatism, of any sort, produces only that "mass man" which is the totalitarian ideal—an ideal which is unfortunately not confined to Russia.

But "thinking for oneself" is also an inadequate formula, for it suggests the even worse dogmatism of the clinging to our own opinions, whatever they may happen to be, simply because they are our own.

In one sense thinking is always "thinking for oneself." But in so far as it is really "thinking" it means the testing of our opinions by the common standards of truth. If social beliefs are not necessarily true or the acts of society necessarily right; neither are individual beliefs always true or individual acts right. Truth and justice are above both.

What are these common standards of Truth? They are the standards of the Law Courts wherever there is justice; the standards of science, wherever it is not decreed science. They imply (1) Humble and scrupulous regard for fact and evidence—not the part that suits us or supports our prejudices but all the evidence. (2) Clear thinking that seeks unambiguous terms and clear propositions and (3) The requirements that systems of propositions should be internally consistent since contradictions, being nonsense, cannot possibly be true. Thinking is essentially free thinking; free to observe without preconceptions; free to reach the conclusions that fact and consistency require; free from all external dictation of tradition, church or state. There is no other thinking that is really thinking except free thinking in this sense.

But free thinking does not mean the liberty to think just anything that you want to think. Thinking imposes upon us a most rigid discipline; a discipline that is inherent in the nature of Truth itself. To claim that one's beliefs are sure and that we have the right to believe them is to claim that they conform to the standards of Truth. These standards of Truth are not the same as "conformity to our prejudices," or even "conformity to the accepted beliefs" of any group.

I am suggesting that the final aim of education goes beyond training in skills or the imparting of knowledge or any kind of indoctrination. The final aim is to produce a certain kind of person with a certain kind of attitude. The best name for this attitude is Reasonableness. Education is liberal in so far as it produces reasonable people who are willing to accept facts, all facts, even awkward facts; who are willing to submit their opinions to discussion which does not evade questions even the awkward questions; who are willing to listen and to learn from many teachers; who do not wish to dominate others or to force their opinions upon them, but who are devoted to search for Truth, the Truth that is above all of us and greater than any of us. Such a man does not engage in the battle for men's mind; he is not a propagandist; he seeks to win no personal victory that may be the defeat of truth. For he acknowledges that ideals of Truth and Justice as sovereign over him.

This attitude has never been better expressed than in the words of Socrates when discussing the issues on which even his dearest hopes depended: "Agree with me if what I say seems to be true, but if not withstand me might and main lest I deceive you as well as myself in my enthusiasm and like the bee leave my sting in you ere I die."

Reasonableness is the one truly social factor making it possible for individuals to remain their truest selves yet live together in societies. It is the best name for the truly moral. For what is morality except reasonable living. It is in its humility, its transcending of the narrow self, akin to love. Indeed it is the intellectual term that for that objective and other-regarding attitude for which Love is the emotional name.

There is constant pressure on educational institutions to turn them either into merely technical institutions or into institutions of propaganda for some special economic, political or religious interests. This is not the function of the college. Ours is the function not of supporting the existing, but of transforming the existing in the light of the ideals of Truth and Justice. Our colleges should be the places where even the most hotly controversial issues can be calmly discussed by competent men who desire to know Truth and to act justly, free from all dictation and from all fear except the fear of being unreasonable.

There is no hope for the world if education is merely for technical skills useful in making a living apart from moral purpose. Nor is there any hope if education is merely dogmatic and propagandist. There remains then, only the clash of rival propagandas each striving to close mind against any other doctrine, with no common good, splitting the community of mankind into warring groups that cannot understand each other or even talk to each other. Without training in reasonable thinking there is no safeguard against the assault on mind or soul by whatever totalitarian system controls the press, radio, and television and the schools.

Liberal education, reasonableness, is the very essence of democracy. Its importance is at any rate clearly seen by all the enemies of democracy. It is the first target for their attack. They well know that they can succeed only if the liberal education is first destroyed.

Alumna Descends to Depths of Volcano . . .

Sara Lou Debnam '50
writes from Japan—

It's a wonderful place. The country is beautiful and, contrary to the average person's conception, the Japanese people are grand—not at all the slant-eyed, sneaking, fanatic, fiends we were led to believe they were during the last war. They are wonderful people—the most sincerely polite people I have ever met. They would rather agree with you that black is white than to insult you by saying it isn't. That is something I have had to get used to but I like it and I think Americans could afford to take a few lessons from them.

I have picked up quite a bit of Japanese, and almost all of the people can speak at least a few words in English, so between us, we converse like natives—natives of what, I don't know, but we converse, nevertheless.

I am stationed at Camp Wood on the Southernmost island, called Kyushu, and the camp is near a town called Kumamoto. I'd say the town is about half the size of Greensboro, but the population is 30,000. You can see why they would be in search of more land. Camp Wood is a beautiful post—we like to refer to it as the "Country Club of Japan". When I was in Seattle, I met a girl from New Jersey who was coming over, too. We saw Seattle together and then, by some strange coincidence were put in the same cabin on the ship. We had a wonderful time all the way over (no seasickness, either) and then prepared to say farewell in Yokohama. However, we were both sent to the Southwest Command, where we again made all of our fond farewells. You can imagine our surprise and delight when we were both assigned to Camp Wood—she as my boss! We live together now and run the club together and are having a wonderful time. Every one on the post is convinced we're absolutely crazy, but since we know that we are, we don't mind.

As I told you before, I'm with Army Special Services as Recreation Leader, and the job has proved itself beyond all my expectations. It is truly wonderful! There are the two of us filling the job of 4, and we put in around 70 or 80 hours a week, but it's work that you don't mind doing so the hours don't bother you. I think I am happier than I have ever been before and plan to remain in the work until that future date when maybe I have the opportunity to settle down.

Every day brings something new and different—never two days alike. I think, so far, the most interesting thing that has happened is when I took a tour of boys (enlisted men of the 157 Airborne Regimental Combat Team) up to Mount Aso, a huge and active volcano. It was really fascinating. We all went half way down into the crater and then several of the boys started the rest of the way down. Well, I just couldn't stand it, so I made them wait for me. We went all the way down, within 20 feet of the actual mouth of the crater where all the steam and sulphur was coming out. You could see down in the hole and it was actually red hot. What a wonderful sight! Coming back up was a different story. It was almost like scaling a wall! Several times we thought we couldn't make it, but eventually we did and when we got to the top there was a huge crowd of Japanese standing around. They took our picture, name, etc., and told me I was "Bery Brabe"—I found out later that they were making all that to-do over it because it seems that there has never been another woman to go all the way down before. What a jolt! Had I known that I probably never would have gone. Made history and didn't even know it! It was fun, though, and something else to write home about, so well worth the effort. But never again!

We've just finished off our first Christmas overseas and it was very nice. Rough, but nice. I talked to my family Tuesday night and that made everything perfect. It's amazing—10,000 miles away and I could hear them perfectly. That, of course, was the best thing about Christmas.

I don't know how much longer we will be here at Camp Wood, but the previous record seems to be five months and we're out to break it; we've been here four months already. If the boys in the Airborne here go back to Korea, then we will more than likely be transferred. When that time comes, then we're going to Korea also. They won't let us stay here indefinitely, so I figure that within six months I should be in Korea. I'm very anxious to go, so it can't be too soon for me.

I could write on and on about Japan and the things that happen over here. You may be the first to read my book and learn all about it! Please give my regards to everyone at W. C., and in case anyone is interested my address is Special Services Section, ASC 47 APO 37, c/o Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif. Girls are needed desperately over here for this work, so if some recruiting can be done on the side, we'd appreciate it. All you need is a college education, just a little experience in recreation, and the interest. The Army does the rest.

News from Local Alumnae Chapters . . .

Atlanta Chapter

The Atlanta chapter of Woman's College alumnae met on January 20, at the home of Frances Horton Burroughs '42, with nine members present.

The group discussed the details for the Fashion Show-Tea which was given February 14 by the J. P. Allen Store under the direction of Annie Braswell Rowe '41 and Bootsie Webb Smith '47.

All proceeds of the tea go to the group's Eunice Kirkpatrick Rankin Scholarship Fund which helps maintain a Georgia girl at the Woman's College.

Columbia, S. C.

The Richland County Chapter of Woman's College Alumnae met January 13, at the home of Margaret Herring Mask '27. The highlight of the evening was an auction with items for sale supplied by each member. The proceeds from the auction were sent to the Student Aid Fund at the college.

The group had a grand time raising the money and thinking about the purpose of the auction made us doubly pleased. There was a large variety of items put up for sale—everything from jam, candy dishes, coasters and gloves to a few items which were gift-wrapped and bought as a "pig-in-the-bag".

Durham County

The Durham County Chapter of the Alumnae Association of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina held their spring dinner meeting on March 25, 1953, in the Civic Room at Harvey's Cafeteria in Durham. Edna Carpenter Baker presided over the meeting which was attended by forty alumnae.

Geraldine Williams gave the invocation, and after dinner presented a musical program. Vocal selections were sung by Ester Frances Bagwell '49 and Nancy Atkins Heldman '51, accompanied by Doris Jean Thomas '50.

The report of the nominating committee was given by Jean Dickey, Chairman.

New officers elected to serve for the next year are: President, Margaret White Umstead '38; Vice-President, Etta May Godwin Lowe '37; Secretary, Frances Chitty Hinnant '44; Treasurer, Mary Elizabeth Suitt Hall '39.

Officers for the past year were as follows: President, Edna Carpenter Baker '38; Vice-President, Geraldine Wall Williams '44; Secretary, Dixie Dean Crumpler '51; Treasurer, Josephine Whitley '44.

The alumnae present introduced themselves and gave their present "occupation". Special guests for the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. James W. Painter of the English faculty of Woman's College. Both of them brought greetings from the college, and Mr. Painter gave an entertaining account of current activities at the college. He brought us up-to-date on the building additions, changes in faculty, discussed the evaluation program of faculty and curriculum, and read some of his modern poetry.

The group discussed the evaluation programs at the college and wanted to go on record as favoring a questionnaire to be sent to alumnae in connection with the evaluation of curriculum. They thought that due to faculty changes, it would not be worthwhile to question alumnae on the faculty program, but that alumnae would definitely be qualified to participate in an evaluation of curriculum. The group voted unanimously in favor of this and instructed the secretary to write their suggestions to the Alumnae Board of Trustees with a request that this be considered.

Lenoir County

OCTOBER MEETING

The Woman's College Lenoir County Alumnae Chapter met October 7, 1952, at the Baptist Church in Kinston for a dinner meeting with Mrs. Frances Dudley, president, presiding. After the singing of the college song, Mrs. J. Hyman Mewborne (Bessie Sims '98) presented the invocation. Thirty-five alumnae were present for the Founder's Day meeting which had Dr. Edward Kidder Graham, Chancellor of Woman's College, as speaker.

Mrs. Eleanor Hill Smith presented Dr. Graham who very enthusiastically brought the group a message, "Founder's Day—the Morning After". He spoke of the spirit on the campus, personnel changes, plans for the future, the budget, and the alumnae.

Officers elected at the meeting were Sarah Henderson Cox '36, president; Eleanor Hill Smith, vice-chairman; Emma (Holmes) Brooks, secretary; and Annie Laurie Lowrey '46, treasurer. Frances Pully Phillips '31 gave a report on the Alumnae Fund and its function.

FEBRUARY MEETING

The Woman's College Alumnae of Lenoir County held a dinner meeting February 11, at the Hotel Kinston with Mr. Charles W. Phillips, Public Relations Director of Woman's College as guest speaker.

Sarah Henderson Cox, chairman, presided and Mrs. W. T. Moseley gave the invocation. Leah Moseley '41 introduced Mr. Phillips who described changes which have taken place at the institution during the past few years. New buildings include the library, home economics, physical education and student union buildings, and the addition of a wing to the science building. He told the group about the recent visit of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt to the campus, and of other campus events.

The alumnae decided to have a picnic in the Spring to entertain girls who plan to go to Woman's College.

Mecklenburg Chapter

The Charlotte and Mecklenburg County alumnae gave a tea January 31, 1953, honoring the students from that area who are now attending Woman's College. The tea was held at the home of Castelloe Bland Denton '29. Margaret Duckworth Palmer was chairman of the event. A picture taken at the tea appeared in a Charlotte paper and pictured Mrs. Denton, Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. J. Preston Williams (Virginia Alverson, class of '40) president of Charlotte alumnae, and Miss Barbara Harris, president of the Students' Association of Mecklenburg County.

Nash County Consolidated University Alumni Meeting

The alumni of the Consolidated University of North Carolina held a dinner meeting at the Ricks Hotel in Rocky Mount January 14, with approximately 200 guests attending the dinner.

The guest speaker was Gordon Gray, President of the Consolidated University of North Carolina, who was introduced by Mr. Thomas J. Pearsall of Rocky Mount, a member of the University Board of Trustees. President Gray gave a stimulating talk explaining the immensity of the Consolidated University from the standpoint of educational opportunities, the human element, functions, and as a guardian and perpetuation of truth. He also mentioned several outstanding activities of the institutions' many departments to support a contention that the Consolidated University is attempting to fulfill its obligations and responsibilities to the people of North Carolina.

In his concluding remarks, Mr. Gray asserted that university administrators are conscious that "we are not free of imperfections. We constantly ask ourselves where are the imperfections and inefficiencies and how can they be remedied." At this point he asked alumni to serve as critical appraisers in promoting the continued growth and progress of the state's three consolidated educational institutions.

Special guests included: Spike Saunders of Chapel Hill, secretary of the General Alumni Association; F. Edgar Thomas, Jr. of Chapel Hill, field representative of the Alumni Association; Miss Em Austin of Tarboro, former trustee and representative of the Woman's College Alumnae Association; L. L. Ray of Raleigh, director of the State College Foundation; and J. C. Vann of Raleigh, comptroller of State College, and Kay Kyser, former band leader of Chapel Hill.

This was the first combined alumni meeting held in Rocky Mount, and it gave a greater feeling of unity. The group is looking forward to more meetings of this kind.

of Religious Activities, were the principal speakers. Annette Bridges Dulaney '41 and Nancy Osteen Quigley '48 as co-chairmen had charge of the dinner. Janet Weil Blumenthal gave the invocation at the beginning of the dinner.

Mrs. Schaeffer, introduced by Rosemary Sweeney Hayden '52, gave a clear insight into the important work of the placement bureau in securing good jobs for the school's graduates, listing some of the fields into which Woman's College students go: teaching, social work, commercial art, and language interpreting as some of them. In summing up her talk, Mrs. Schaeffer urged the aid of the local chapters of alumnae in sending in employers' or firms' names who would be interested in Woman's College graduates.

Mrs. Clarke told the group of the very active religious program now being conducted at the college. Some of the plans included an Inter-Faith Forum which was held in February, and the revitalizing of YWCA work on the campus.

Doris (Huffines) Bernhardt is teaching at the American Dependents' School, Burtonwood Air Force Base, Burtonwood, England. "My work is quite varied—I substitute in the absence of regular teachers, work in the high school and the elementary school libraries, and assist with high school choral work. My comments on England are: beautiful, historical places, very friendly people, but uncommonly odd winter weather—even Greensboro is out-done here!"

Betty Will McReynolds sent in the following items about members of the class: Nancy Medford teaches math and Spanish at Monroe High School.

Virginia Bridges and Ina Mae Price room together in Gastonia where they both teach school.
